WHERE TO MEET A NICE SINGLE LADY ON THE EL

What could be more romantic than a ride in the El?

Many, many things — but that shouldn't stop you from trying.

Adding some heat to your daily commute, please allow us to present the top El lines for not only getting you from point A to B, but also maybe scoring a date in the process.

GIRLS NEXT DOOR

The Red Line is a mecca for two things: Cubs flag-toting baseball fans and Chicago's rainbow flag-toting community (maybe add homeless people to that list). More specifically, Boystown is a single girl's safe haven. Catch her in a friendly, talkative mood after Saturday night at an unthreatening gay club, or console her after the Cubbies' bullpen failed yet again to hold a lead.

HIPSTER HONEYS

The Blue Line between Chicago and Logan Square is a hottie hipster oasis, full of floral dresses and ripped shirts at "unconventional hours" (what the rest of us call "unemployment"). Catch these wandering waifs waiting for the train on weekday afternoons, and divert them to Big Star for a drink.

COMMUTING CUTIES

Once five o'clock rolls around, everyone wants to escape the city, but not everyone wants to escape to the West Loop. The Green Line is an express route to the uber-chic Fulton Market restaurant district and the uber-chic ladies who frequent it. Make a pre-Happy Hour run to meet cute and snag numbers as they wait in night-on-the-town stilettos by the dozens.

MOMS ON THE MAKE

Sunday morning pilates has treated these single moms very well. Catch them post-workout in yoga pants on the Brown Line and casually suggest the babysitter stays late tonight because mom deserves a glass of wine and some conversation that doesn't involve baby talk.
